

CENTER FOR
EXECUTIVE EDUCATION LEADERSHIP

Aspiring Leaders

“School leadership is second only to teacher quality in terms of importance – and the more dire a school’s predicament, the greater the need for strong leadership. There are virtually no documented instances of troubled schools being turned around without intervention by a powerful leader,” said Kenneth Leithwood, a professor at the University of Toronto who studies leadership. (Hechinger, March 2011)

Program offerings in this strand are designed to support and guide teacher leaders, instructional coaches and other individual contributors who are aspiring to the role of Assistant Principal. The content will help professionals to both determine their interest in and aptitude for the leadership responsibilities of that position. Additionally, once an individual has determined his or her suitability for the role, content is offered to begin the process of preparation. Ideally, districts will nominate and refer potential candidates who will receive development support in small group settings over a specified period of time in order to help create a pipeline of capable and experienced leaders for the future.

2019-20 PROGRAM OFFERINGS

July 16, 2019

How Can I Know if School Leadership
Is Right for Me?

July 24, 2019

Handling Difficult Conversations

July 31, 2019

Preparing for the Role of School Leader

CENTER FOR
EXECUTIVE EDUCATION LEADERSHIP

@SCASANews

#MeetMeAtTheCenter

Center for Executive Education Leadership
SCASA Building
1 Fernandina Court, Columbia, SC 29212
www.sceel.org (803) 798-8380